"This batch of assay results represents the last results from our recently completed 70,000-metre RC drill program along the 1.6-kilometre strike at the Crusader-Templar prospect.

"The company will update the drilling database and commence initial resource modelling work, which will be integral in planning the next significant drill program being planned to commence in October."

In addition to this round of RC drilling, Nexus also completed a flora and fauna survey which identified no impediments to further exploration and development.
