

Experimental activities will attempt to achieve an outcome by applying a systematic progression of work that proceeds from hypothesis to experimental phase (or phases as required), observation and evaluation, leading to logical conclusions.

This will result in the generation of new scientific knowledge.

The R&D project is being undertaken on both Nexus' Wallbrook and Pinnacles gold projects, where relevant geological and mineralogical characteristics are known or are being characterised by Nexus, which assists in the evaluation of the new exploration technique.

Multiple project areas allow for a series of varying geological settings upon which to undertake the experimental activities and gather sufficient samples to allow logical conclusions to be reached post-analysis.

The R&D project, which started in July 2017, will be undertaken over an approximate four-year timeline, with the first two-three years mainly consisting of data collection with ongoing analysis and the final year consisting of results-based interpretation and conclusions.
